—If you require a Spring medicine, if you are suffering with languor, debility, pimples, boils, catarrh, chronic sores, scrofula, or loss of appetite, or any disease arising from unpure blood, take Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the safest and most economical of all blood purifiers.

As Popular as Ever.

The following from the Mariposa Gazette shows that Mrs. Gov. Adams is as popular in California as she was here. The Gazette says:

Hon. W. F. Coffman, while in San Francisco the other day, met Jewett W. Adams, who, with his wife were staying at the Palace Hotel. Mr. Coffman says Jewett Adams has the dearest duck of a lady for a wife the world ever saw. She is of the most amiable character and notwithstanding, she is capable of assuming the highest style and order of things, she is plain, easy and affable.

Prospecting.

There seems to be quite a mining revival here and several good prospects have been discovered in Winnemucca mountain. Pieces of float rock, literally covered with gold, have been found in one locality on the mountain, and silver ores are being discovered all over the range.

—Silver State.

Being More Pleasant

THEY ADJOURNED COURT

To Allow Jim Townsend to Lick a Lawyer.

Last week, over in Lundy, there was a case in the Justice Court in which Jim Townsend (our Jim) was a witness. A lawyer named Burnham made fun of Townsend's deafness and badgered him in every way. Jim stood it with great patience for about an hour, when finally he said:

“May it please the Court, I ask an adjournment.”

“What for?” asked the Court.

“Your Honor, I would like the Court adjourned for five minutes while I go out and lick this infernal lawyer.”

“I was just gon' out to do it myself, pard,” replied the Court, “but if you won't be over five minutes I'll adjourn.”

The Court was adjourned, and Jim licked the lawyer to the intense amusement of the crowd, who now want to make him Mayor of Lundy.

She.

A large audience greeted “She” last evening. Of course everyone who had read the book was there, and a lot more. They had the pleasure of seeing Mr. Jas. O. Barrows in the cast, who originally hit on the idea of dramatizing “She.” He confided his version to an old friend of his, who was mean enough to appropriate the credit and the play, and also beat Barrows out of it in the Courts. Therefore the public will be glad to know that the new version which Barrows has placed on the stage is better than the old one, and that he is making money rapidly with the product of his brains in partnership with George C. Staley, an old Nevada favorite.

The play is full of fine scenic effects, catchy music, weird scenes by sea and land, moonlit ruins, gloomy caves changed to dazzling grottoes by the “Fire of Life,” scenes of beauty and enchantment, all covered with the glamor of romance and mysticism, such as only a brain like Haggard's could have dreamed of. The cast was a strong one, and the central figure of “She,” as played by Miss Heath, makes the audience regret that such beauty of outline should shrivel and wrinkle into such an unsightly remnant.

A Touching Scene.

“No, Charles Rupert Augustus, it can never be! This night we must part, and part forever. The affection that I have bestowed upon you has been wasted, and the chair which we have occupied together during the long Winter evenings, must henceforth be vacant.”

The young man drew himself up to his full height (4 feet 8 inches), and demanded an explanation. Then the beautiful girl looked lovingly into the depth of his eyes, and between her sobs she said:

“No man who will pay $40 for a suit of clothes, when he can get one just as good for $15 at Platt's on Carson street, can be my husband.”

“Then I will promise never again to be so extravagant,” came the quick reply.

An Imposition.

Some of the canned goods sent here from California are the most bare-faced impositions imaginable. The writer recently opened some canned raspberry jam, which he is willing to wager never contained a grain of the fruit, the flaming name of which circled the can.

An examination showed that the raspberry jam was full of old grape and plum skins, mixed up with hard seeds that reminded one of coffee grounds, or more properly chickory.

We would like to see the California papers show up these frauds, as a few dishonest houses in the canning business will soon ruin the canning industry of California.

Oleovich Brothers.

The well-known dealers in General Merchandise, call the attention of the public to the following facts: They have on hand a large and well-selected stock of Shoes. These they offer at a sacrifice.

Everybody is invited to call and inspect before purchasing elsewhere.

—James Guider, 25 years old, whose relatives live at Sutter Creek, shot himself deliberately in the head on a ranch four miles from Galt Wednesday.

—The Assessor of Santa Cruz county overhauled a band of gypsies at Watsonville and made them disgorge $40 for poll and personal property taxes.

It Wouldn't Work.

WASHINGTON March 29.—It is stated that the tariff bill will be reported to the House on Monday.

The Republican Senators had a caucus this morning pending the Bond bill, and the Stewart amendment provided the chief topic of discussion, but no decision was reached. Another caucus is called for Monday, and in the meantime the committee will undertake the task of outlining the financial policy for the party.

Some rather vigorous efforts were made during the caucus to reform the silver views of Senator Stewart, of Nevada, but without any apparent effect. An effort was made to secure unanimous agreement to favor Palmer's motion to recommit the Bond bill, but several silver men refused to assent to this proposition.

A Terrible Calamity.

A terrible mining explosion took place at Rich Hill on Thursday, and over one hundred miners were buried in the drifts with all hope of escape cut off.

This completely dwarfs the Gould & Curry disaster in this State. Over sixty bodies have been recovered, and it is almost impossible that a single miner has escaped.

Nevada miners should remember the generous response to their calamity last year, and should make a quick and open-handed return to the families of the victims of this disaster.
